FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CHAMPION CANTERBURY AWARD FINALIST ANNOUNCED
SaleHoo named finalist for second year running

SaleHoo.com and its parent company, Doubledot Media has made it through to the finals of the Champion Canterbury Awards for the second year running.

The Awards, which highlight notable business success in the Canterbury region of New Zealand have been running since 2003, in which time they have identified a stunning array of business talent from throughout the Canterbury region.

"It truly is humbling to be through to the finals again," says SaleHoo and Doubledot Media co-founder and CEO, Simon Slade. "I'm just really proud of all the hard work our people have put in to the organization to keep it so successful even during one of the most unfavorable business environments in many years."

Despite a global recession, SaleHoo has been growing at a breakneck speed, adding 12 new staff in the last year – a phenomenal feat for such a small company.

"We're really excited to see how we're doing to develop over the next 12 to 18 months. We've brought on a lot of really smart people who are helping reshape the company's focus and direction," says Slade.

SaleHoo and Doubledot Media are finalists in the Champion Global Operator category for small enterprise.

Winners will be announced at an awards ceremony on the 24th of September at the Christchurch Convention Center.
